Applicant Sion Buckler

Dear Mr Buckler

Your email of the 19 April 2026, has been referred to me for review. I apologise for the delay in replying to you. I am a Land Registrar and as such the most senior lawyer at the office. Your complaint has been referred to me as you have previously received a stage 1 complaint response from Charlotte Takeuchi (Assistant Land Registrar) and your letter to her has been treated as a request for a further review of your case a stage 2.

I am sorry to read of your concerns in relation to this matter, I do understand how complex, stressful and time-consuming dealing with land and property matters can be and the hardship you are suffering. I hope that this letter will provide some clarity on the matter for you.

I have now completed my review and set out full consideration of the matter and outcome of the review below. I have examined the evidence lodged in support of the application and have considered everything that you have told us. If I do not refer to any point raised by you, it is not because I have not considered it, but because I do not think it will help to explain my conclusions.

HM Land Registry operates a two-stage internal complaints procedure, and this constitutes our second and final response. It is not possible to ask anyone else in HM Land Registry to review the matter again.

Further information about our complaints process can be found at www.gov.uk/government/organisations/land-registry/about/complaints-procedure

My understanding is that you asked for a review of the decision of the Assistant Land Registrar, Charlotte Takeuchi, and her email dated the 19 October 2025.

BACKGROUND

I have read through all the correspondence that you have sent and all of our replies. You have asked for the complaint to be re-considered and asked us to consider 4 questions that you have raised at the end of your email.

I know that Ms Takeuchi has set out some of the background of HM Land Registry but I will set out our role and duties a bit further.

HM Land Registry can only do what the law gives it power to do.
The law in this case is the Land Registration Act 2002 (“the Act”) and the Land Registration Rules 2003 ("the Rules").

The purpose of these pieces of legislation is to provide a registration system for interests in land, designed to provide registered title holders with a state backed guarantee of ownership, and to facilitate transactions involving interests in land. We do not have any power to act outside of the parameters laid down by the legislation.

HM Land Registry's main job is to keep a register of interests in land, and to enter information on the register based on the applications we receive. We are required to check, before doing so that each application includes the information required under the Act and the Rules. We are a recording Agency that records the information we receive. We do not have administrative power to investigate or determine disputes that may arise.

The registration history of the property has been clearly set out by Ms Smith in her letter dated 23 March 2026. In short, we received an application to register the land on the North side of Leckwith Road Llandough.

At the time of registration we did not receive or were aware of any interest that you or your family may or may not have had in the land. The applicants at the time provided documentary title to the land that is registered and we were unaware of any dispute that was possibly ongoing. If you believed that you and your family had an interest in the land you could have applied at that time for a caution on the register to note your interest which we may have been recorded but we did not receive any application.

The applicants had documentary title to the land they were registered with at the time.

All the issues you have raised including identity fraud, to the issue of title, to the land, are issues the Court would have dealt with and if you disagree with the findings of the Court then that is the appropriate forum to address your concerns. HM Land Registry is not the correct forum to resolve this issue.

In respect of the questions you have raised I will deal with these in turn

1. Identity mismatch by the Courts. Your grandmother was married and therefore upon marriage the woman takes on the husband's name as there is a marriage certificate to show this. In the UK, your married name remains your legal name until you actively change it back to your maiden name. It is the identity of the person that matters not which name is used and in this instance, it was clear the proceedings were in respect of your grandmother.

2. Therefore, this is not potential evidence of a mistake on the register.

3. We will not be commencing the process of rectification or formally referring the dispute.

4. There is no claim for indemnity under Schedule 8 of the Act.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set out above, I do not uphold your complaint. Having considered all the information available the title has been registered correctly and there are no grounds for rectification or indemnity.

I realise that this is not the outcome that you would have hoped for, but I hope that the above is of assistance in explaining the reasons for my decision.

As set out at the beginning of this letter, HM Land Registry operates a two stage complaints process. This is the final stage in that procedure, and it is not possible to ask anyone else to review this matter again.

EXTERNAL REMEDIES AVAILABLE TO CUSTOMERS OUTSIDE HM LAND REGISTRY

If you remain dissatisfied and wish to take this further, the following options may be available to you.

The Independent Complaints Reviewer (ICR)

Issues with the customer service provided by HM Land Registry can be referred to the Independent Complaints Reviewer (the ICR) who may decide to carry out a review. That process is entirely independent of HM Land Registry. Anyone including members of the public, businesses and professional advisors are able to utilise this service. The aim of this service is to provide a free, effective and impartial review and resolution service that settles complaints.

The ICR can be contacted at: -
The ICR Office
10 South Colonnade
Canary Wharf
London
E14 4PU

Telephone: 0300 013 2119. E-mail: enquiries@icrev.org.uk

Further information about the ICR can be found at the following website: - https://www.icrev.org.uk/contact/

Please note the following important points about the ICR:
The service is free for complainants.

The ICR will not consider a complaint more than six months after HM Land Registry has completed investigations and given a final response.

The ICR cannot consider complaints about registration decisions or legal points or overturn a decision made (for example, a decision that an objection to an application should be dismissed as groundless, or a refusal by the registrar to alter the register), although the ICR may consider a complaint about the manner in which such a decision was reached.

The ICR cannot recommend that HM Land Registry pay compensation for losses caused by error or fraud but may recommend that a consolatory payment be made in appropriate circumstances.

The ICR is not able to provide users with legal advice.

Judicial Review

Judicial Review is a type of Court proceeding in which a judge reviews the lawfulness of a decision or action made by a public body. Judicial Reviews are a challenge to the way a decision has been made rather than the rights and wrongs of the conclusion reached.

If you wish to challenge a legal decision made by H M Land Registry, you might be able go to court to ask for judicial review of the way the decision was made.

Further information about the process can be found online at www.judiciary.gov.uk/you-and-the-judiciary/judicial-review/.

If you are considering this possibility, I suggest you obtain specialist legal advice as soon as you can because an application usually needs to be made to court within very strict time limits.

This now concludes my final review.

Yours sincerely

Harbinder Gill
Land Registrar
